Love Song. Love's for Youth, and not for Age, E'en though Age should wear a crown; For the Poet, not the Sage, Not the Monarch, but the Clown.

Love's for Penes, and not for War.
B'en though War bring all renown;
For the Violet, not the Star;
For the Mendow, not the Town.

Love's for lads and Love's for malds, Courts a smile and illes a frown; Love's for Love, and sauey jades Love Love most when Love has flown

Love a cruel tyrant is: Slays his victims with a glance; Straight recovers with a kiss. But to slay again, perchance.

Wouldst thou know where Love d. Whence his sharpest arrows il). In a dimple Love may hide, Or the ambush of an eye.

Wert thou clad in triple mail, in a desert far apart; Not a whit would this avail; Love would find and pierce thy heart. -Thomas Nelson Pags, in January Scrib-

BATTLE-HYMN OF THE REPUBLIC.

By JULIA WARD HOWE.

Julia Ward Howe was born in New York city, May 27, 1819. Her ancestors included the Huguenot Marions, of South Carolina, and Roger Williams, the preacher, liter father was a banker. In 1818 she became the wife of Dr. Samuel G. Howe, a well known pulanthropist, who did great work for the freedom of Greece. Mrs. Howe December, 1861, Dr. and Mrs. Howe, Governor and Mrs. John A. Andrew and Other Freedom to Washington. One day, in company with James Freeman Clarke and others, Mrs. Howe attended a review of the troops: "Listept as usual that hight" the works of the affair, "but woke before dawn, and soan found myself trying the writes of the affair, "but woke before dawn, and soan found myself trying the work together certain lines which, though not entirely suited to the John Brown music, were ynt capable of being sung to it. I lay still in the dark room, line after imaging itself in my mind, and verse after verse. When I had thought out the last of those, I found that I must make an affort to place them beyond the danger of being effaced by a morning nap. I sprange out of bed and groped about in the dim twilight to find a bit of paper and the stump of a pen which I remembered to have had the night before. Having found these articles, and having long been accustome to scribble with scarcely any sight of what I might write in a room made dark for the screen of the part of the control of the Atlantic Monthly. MINE eyes have seen the glory of the coming of

He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored:

He hath loosed the fateful lightning of his terrible gwift sword:

His truth is marching on.

I have seen Him in the watch-fires of a hundred circling camps;

They have builded Him an altar in the the evening dews and damps;

I can read His righteous sentence by the dim and flaring lamps. His day is marching on.

Since God is marching on.

I have read a flery gospel, writ in burnished rows of steel: "As ye deal with my contemners, so with you my grace shall deal; Let the Hero, born of woman, crush the serpent with his heel,

He has sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat; He is sifting out the hearts of men before his judgment-seat: Oh! be swift, my soul, to answer Him! be jubilant, my feet! Our God is marching on.

In the beauty of the lilles Christ was born across the sea, With a glory in his bosom that transfigures you and me: As he died to make men holy, let us die to make men free, While God is marching on.

IN MIDST OF RICHES, DIED OF STARVATION

(Special to The Times Dispatch.)

BURLINGTON N. J., Jan. 4.—In his home, which has been found to be a verticable treasure house, and with a fortune estimated at nearly half a million dollars, Firman Dubel, eightly-six years old, died last week after he had told his physician he was too poor to buy hour lishing food, and was buried in the lot of a disant relative, to whom he had declared during his last moments that he could not afford to pay for the disging of his grave.

Dubell was a descendant of a prominent Revolutionary family. For the last twenty years the old man and als aged sisterin-law, Ann Chilch have lived alone in their home, near the center of the city. The house was spiendialy furnished and the rooms were litted with every comfort, but the owner thought them loog good to use, and so for all these years, with the housekeeper as his sole companion, he had begn living in the dilapidated shed and two small rear rooms.

(Special to The Times Dispatch.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., January 4.—M.
Des Portes de la Fosse, counsellor to the French enbassy, has a big, high-powered automotise. He likes to speed it. Yesterday afternoon a policeman held up the counsellor at Dupons Circle and told him he was going too fast. The policeman says the Frenchman's automobile was scudding twenty-two miles ah hour.
The counsellor told the policeman who he was, and said he was not liable to arrest, as he was attached to the French embassy. The policeman took that view of it and let the counsellor proceed.
This is the third time de la Fosse has been held up for speeding his automobile, and Maior Sylvester, superintondan of police, is cudseling his brains to find a way to stop him.
